Detroit, MI 48226-3134

Telephone: (313) 963-7777

Contact: David O. Egner, Pres.

URL: <http://www.hudson-webber.org>

Donor(s): Eloise Webber; Richard Webber; The J.L. Hudson Co.; Mary Webber Parker; and members of the Webber family.

Type of grant maker: Independent foundation.

Purpose and activities: Concentrates efforts and resources in support of projects within five program missions that impact the vitality and quality of life of the metropolitan Detroit community: 1) growth and development of the Detroit Medical Center; 2) economic development of southeastern Michigan, with emphasis on assisting chronically unemployed Detroiters obtain and retain employment; 3) physical revitalization of the central city; 4) enhancement of major art and cultural resources in Detroit; and 5) reduction of crime in Detroit. The foundation also provides charitable assistance to qualified J.L. Hudson Co. employees or ex-employees needing help in overcoming personal crises and misfortunes.

Program area(s): The grant maker has identified the following area(s) of interest:

Section 3

- Arts : The foundation awards modest annual grants for the general program support of Detroit's major art and cultural organizations.
- Detroit Medical Center: Because the Webber and Hudson families played major roles in the development of Harper and Children's Hospitals and the Detroit Medical Center, and because these institutions are of critical importance to the health of the community, the foundation gives high priority to the growth and development of the Medical Center.
- Detroit Physical Revitalization: The foundation strives to encourage downtown revitalization strategies, redevelopment projects and neighborhood revitalization and development. The foundation has a particular interest in helping to stimulate the redevelopment of the Woodward Corridor.
- Economic Development: High priority is given to the identification and encouragement of creative new approaches to the economic development of the City of Detroit, with emphasis on expanding employment opportunities and supporting effective workforce training programs that prepare chronically unemployed Detroiters for long-term employment.
- Hudsonian Assistance and Counseling Program: The program provides the services of a professional counselor to assist eligible J.L. Hudson Co. employees and ex-employees and their dependents who are seeking help with personal crises. This counselor offers referral to public agencies and private resources as appropriate. When financial assistance is a necessary component of crisis resolution, and when personal or family resources, outside commercial resources, and/or assistance available through community, charitable, or public resources is unavailable or inadequate, the program's counselor may apply for a grant from the foundation on behalf of a Hudsonian.
- Matching Gifts: The foundation matches gifts of trustees and employees to public charities.
- Safe Community: The foundation is especially interested in supporting youthful offender programs that stem the development of long-term criminal behavior; special emphasis is also given to the development of creative initiatives to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of criminal justice agencies in curtailing crime, and to interactive partnerships between citizens, independent service agencies, and criminal justice agencies.
